IV. Processing of Data for Website Visitor Tracking

Placement and purpose of cookies and "web beacons"

When using the controller's website, the controller places small data files that also contain data that cannot be directly linked to the user (cookies) on the user's computer for the purposes below: data recording;

- identification of the User;
- facilitating future visits by the User;
- increasing efficiency of the service;
- sending targeted advertisements or other targeted content to the User, or for market research.

To ensure the fast and efficient operation of the website we place cookies and web beacons (visit-monitoring program).

The controller does not link the data it obtains as a result of the use of the data files to the identification data of the user concerned. So-called session cookies will be automatically deleted after expiry of the deadline included in the cookie.

The User has the following options in his/her browser in respect of cookies:

- the User gets a notice that the controller wishes to place a cookie on his or her computer
- the User may prohibit sending of cookies at any time

In this respect we emphasise that not accepting cookies will result in inadequate operation of certain pages or functions and the user may not be authorised to access certain data. For more information on cookies please visit <http://www.cookiecentral.com>.

In addition to the cookies placed on the user's computer by the controller, third parties may also install data files on the user's computer, for example where the user visits another web page within the framework of the controller's website.

For the above purposes, the controller may insert a web beacon (in other words, a web bug) from a third party in its website. A web beacon is an image embedded in a web page, with the help of which visits to the website can be monitored. This information is also called "clickstream data". This data helps to analyse visit habits, which are necessary for improving the quality of the website or in connection with displaying advertisements. In terms of function web beacons are similar to cookies, they are used for tracking online movements of users. The main difference between the two is that web beacons are not visible on the page. At the same time, (as opposed to cookies) users are unable to prohibit the installation of web bugs in their browser. For more information on web beacons please see http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Web_beacon

In addition to the above, for the adequate operation of the Service and for purposes of learning user visit data on the website as well as the interests of users, the controller uses the Google Analytics measurement system. The controller does not link the data thus obtained to any other data on the basis of which the user can be identified.
